

To All Concerned:

As an average citizen, I have no everyday use for any of the regulations applicable to this petition. Yet it is beyond my imagination why anyone ever thought that making any part of the codified laws of the United States a proprietary document was constitutional or acceptable in a democratic society. Indeed, the courts agree (see *Veeck v. Southern Building Code Congress*, 293 F.3d 791 \(5th Circuit Court of Appeals, 2002\)). So why on earth are there still laws on the books that you have to pay money to read? Think about that for a moment. It sounds absurd.

Please change that.

Sincerely,

Linn Davis
