

If standards have been incorporated as part of the law they need to be publically available so that people can acquaint themselves with the law. Since citizens are required to comply with the laws and are bound by them, they need access to them. Making them available online is definitely important as is providing access to them through government documents libraries. Thanks.

Sincerely,
Karin Thogersen