

Comment from Matthew Hernandez

This is a Comment on the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) Proposed Rule: Safety Standard for Infant Bath Tubs

For related information, Open Docket Folder

Comment Now!

Due Oct 28 2015, at 11:59 PM ET

Comment

Even not being a parent it is easy to see why a baby is every parent most valuable responsibility in their life. In activity such as bathing your child an activity that requires a parent to nurture and that care of that child no risk should be involved to child. Yet there are products out there that have caused serious injury to a child and in some cases death. This is inexcusable. Especially, when people who purchase these products are unaware of some of these issues. I think that a product recall involving product defects of infant assisted bathing products is a step in the right direction to protect our future. Children had their lives cut short before they even had dreams or aspirations to look forward to fulfilling. No parent should have to bury their child; nor should a parent have to take their child to an emergency room in the hopes that's not scarring from the cuts of a dangerous bath. Even a fall or blow the head to child before their brain fully develops can be severe. This product recall and product notification is a step in the right direction to help prevent these issues.

ID: CPSC-2015-0019-0003

Tracking Number: 1jz-8lbn-wsnn

Document Information

Date Posted:

Sep 25, 2015

RIN:

Not Assigned

Show More Details

Submitter Information

Submitter Name:

Matthew Hernandez