Liz,

Thank you! This looks fabulous. Since it might get buried if released on a Friday, we are going to post it on Monday.

Please convey our sincere appreciation to your colleagues, including Joe. It's always a pleasure to work with ANSI.

Have a great weekend!

Best,

Emily

Hi Liz,

I saw that ANSI announced the launch on Monday. Would you still like to do a blog post? We would be very happy to post it this week!

Thanks,

Emily

Thanks, Emily!

We will start working on this so we can have it over to you as soon as the portal launches. I don't have an actual date but I know we are targeting the last week in October. We plan to issue a press release on launch day, which can also be when the ACUS blog is published, but of course it will all depend on your editorial calendar, Megan. We are very flexible!

Best,

Liz

Dear Emily,

I was very impressed, and of course very grateful, that you were able to join us last week. Thanks for being there, and doing your usual terrific job on the panel.

It would be our pleasure to contribute a guest post on your blog. Thank you very much for asking us.

I have spoken to Liz about this and she will be the one who will follow up from our side to coordinate this.

Have a wonderful weekend.

Best regards.

Joe

Dear Joe,

I'm so glad I was able to join you all last week at the ANSI Open Forum. It was a great discussion—thank you again for including me!

ANSI's anticipated launch of its standards portal is a truly exciting development, and I was thrilled to hear your remarks about it. We view it as a significant step towards implementation of the Conference's recommendation on Incorporation by Reference, and we would very much like to communicate the good news to our constituents when the portal is launched. To that end, we cordially invite you to contribute a guest post for the Conference's blog, AdministrativeFIX, to announce and discuss the portal. Of course, if it would be more appropriate for one of your colleagues at ANSI to author the post, that would certainly be fine with us.

FYI, the Conference will remain open through COB this Friday, October 11. After that, we are closing, and all employees will be furloughed until the shutdown is over. If you're anticipating launching the standards portal very soon—say, in the next week—we would be happy to publish your blog post before we shut down on Friday. Otherwise, we would publish your post when you launch the portal or when the shutdown is over, whichever comes first.

Please let us know your thoughts. I've cc'ed our Communications Director, Megan Kindelan. If you have any questions or concerns, please don't hesitate to ask either of us!

Thank you,

Emily Schleicher Bremer | Attorney Advisor
