Emily,

Not a problem -- thank you for getting back to me today.

The seemingly missing semi colon is a style thing, and AP Style does not use the penultimate comma, except if there's another 'and' hanging around to cause confusion.

The pdf I sent you is low resolution, and not from the actual layout software, so photos at times do not look as they will in print. Our graphic artist said your photo will be fine.

And yes, we can accommodate additional use of the interview with the proper permissions -- Maryann has a better sense of the way to go on this.

Thank you very much for contributing the interview!

Best, Cicely

Cicely,

My apologies for not responding earlier—it's been a crazy week! This looks great, though!

One very minor thing is that there seems to be a semicolon missing on the second page, in the first full paragraph in the middle column, between "incorporating by reference" and "and 4) avoiding." Maybe that's intentional, but if not, I thought I'd bring it to your attention. Also, it looks as though the picture is a little pixilated. Is that an issue on our end? If the picture I sent you did not have a high enough resolution, please let us know, and we'll see if we can fix that.

One other question: we would love to be able to blog about this and share the interview on our website. Would it be possible for us to post the PDF of the final interview or reprint the text? Please let us know if that's possible and, if so, whether there's anything we need to do to make it happen.

Thanks again for inviting me to do this and for your help putting it all together. It really does look great!

Best,
Emily

Hi Emily,

I am unsure if you received the pdf of your interview for the Nov./Dec. ASTM Standardization News that I sent to you on Monday, so I am resending it now for your final check. I'd appreciate it if you would let us know as soon as possible if you have any concerns or changes.

My editor, Maryann Gorman, is cc'd on this email as I'll be out of the office starting tomorrow; I'd appreciate your response to her as well as to me.

We're really looking forward to having the interview in the magazine; thanks for contributing it!

Regards, Cicely
